Grave Situation.

Startling statements concerning the panic among State authorities, resulting from the Circuit Court decision in this case, are made by members of the State commissions.

So grave is the situation that recently a conference was held in Lincoln, Neb., by representatives of the State Commissions of Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Texas, It developed that these States have an aggregate of seventy-eight cases now pending in Federal courts, the decisions of all 51 which would be practically indicated, and would be adverse to the State right of regulating traffic within its own borders, if the Minnesota case should be affirmed by the Supreme Court.

When the national convention of rallroad commissioners met in Washington the same question was brought up and discussed. In view of the fact that the Lincoin conference had named the Thorne committee to appear before the Supreme Court in behalf of the State contention, the convention did not appoint a like committee of its own, but adopted a resolution approving the Linrocoin procedure and authorizing the Thorne committee to appear in behalf of the national organization.

Efforts Paralyzed.

"The Sanborn decision is paralyzing regulative efforts by the States, which always have led in this field, and have been followed at a long interval by the national government. Kansas was about to begin a valuation of her railroads, but has stopped to await the Sanborn cas deision. Iowa has continued all her cases in the Federal court. The railroads maintain, and the commissions concede, that if the Sanborn decision is upheld it will end State regulation.
